

Homework is Boring!

In my opinion students should not need to do homework! Students need to spend time with their family. They have already spent 6 hours at school thinking, reading, writing and doing maths. Finally, students need to rest up and complete activities they want to complete.

The first reason why homework is terrible, is because students need to spend time with their family, so they don't get lonely and sad. Students have spent six hours at school already. Doctors say it's bad for your children's health if they overthink. Also, students need to rest up for another 6 hours hard work at school the next day and complete more activities.

Another reason why homework is terrible is because homework can strain your children's eyes. Experts agree that physical activity after school is vital and homework makes children stay up later so they will be very tired and cranky tomorrow.

My final argument is that students should not need to do homework that doesn't help the student. Parents don't have the time to assist their children in their homework when they just want to relax as well. Homework is a waste of time!

Just think about it, students should not be expected to do long boring homework after school. You would be silly to do homework. Now I have proven to you that homework is terrible for students. Throw your homework in the bin right now!
